THE AREQUEPAN DECREE OF GEN. CANSECO-DECREE FOR A GENERAL ELECTION-GEN. HOVEY AND THE NEW GOVERNMENT-RESIG-NATION OF THE MINISTER OF THE INTERIOR -RETURN OF THE IRON-CLADS.

The sweeping character of Gen. Canseco's celebrated Arequepan Decree, by which the affairs of .the Republic, interior and exterior, were to take a march backward of two years, has been found to be impracticable-not through any consideration to the foreigners who have leaned money, and have had contracts with the previous administration, but because it touched interests, too powerful to be disregarded, of the wealthy and influential Peruvians, who were not disposed to submit tamely to such an outrageous denial of rights legitimately ac quired. The Cabinet of Gen. Canseco has therefore very ama, waited upon Gen. Canseco and felicitated him upon his accession to power. The United States Minister, Gen. Hovey, was not present, he not having received any instruction from Washington as to the course to pursue with the new Government. As the elections will come off in April, and the installation of the newly-elected President will take place in July, that will be soon enough to recognize the new ord. To ftkings, for then the Cabmet at Washington could recognize a President elected by the people, and not one of a revolutionary origin.

The former, however, playing the part for almost the first time. lacked, to some extent, that identification with the character for which his condintors were remarkale. Yet he was spirited and interesting; and, in this, as in other personations, he has shown himself a credit to the company. Mr Ringgold and Miss Kate Rance left nothing to be wished for in their exceedingly accurate and tasteful delineations of Mr. and Mrs. Younghusband. Mr. Holland appeared as Mr. Dismal; Mrs. Sefton as Mrs. Dismal; Mr. Young as Mr. Dore; and Miss Morant as Mrs. Dore; and it is not too much to say that each performance was literally perfect. Roars of laughter greeted the several scenes, and the curtain fell amid the cordial approbation of the spectators. We have rarely seen an audience so well pleased as that was which witnessed "Married Life" at Wallack's Theater last night. Humor wins a trumph, indeed, when it can wile the sound of happy laughter from the lips—and hearts—of man and woman who suffer under the tribulation of such weather as prevailed yesterday. The storm was uncommonly violent—even for this very violent Winter. Show has come to be a positive huisance. It is good to laugh, however; and, as "Paul Pry" will be played at Wallack's to-night, with Mr. Holland as Paut, the lovers of fun cannot do better than to "drop in," and laugh, and forget that the stormy winds do blow. "Ici L'on Parle Francals" will be given as an after piece. "The Scrious Family" is assigned for Wednesday. "Rosedale" will be produced as soon as Mr. Lester Wallack becomes well enough to play. formance was literally perfect. Roars of laughter and working, and will pay money, more than enough to carry their own State, with the understanding that if the Democratic party is successful they are to be compensated for their losses by emancipation—compensated for their slaves. So it is all over the South, the understanding that a Democratic victory will, in effect, repudiate the national debt, and will give them compensation for what they call their losses by Lincoln's proclamation of emancipation. Then a large class of the mercantile and business men are also interested. They are bound by debts and credit at home, and they will sympathize with the rest and lend their aid, with the understanding that they are to get paid for their debts, otherwise uncollectable, if they succeed in electing a President and a Congress. Be sure, then, friends in Wisconsin, that no more mistakes are made. I think it has been a great mistake to keep the Southern States out of the Union as long as we have by the process of reconstruction. I think Congress ought to have laid down its terms on the question, and not have asked the rebellious States to accept them, but tell them they must accept them. [Cheers, If they had done that, every State would have been back in the Union long before this. If we had adopted such a plan, we should not have been troubled. But, my friends, we are to meet the case as it is; now the work must go on as it can. I say it must go on, and the Rebel States be reconstructed and brought back. Another successful struggle, and the work is done. What you have to do in the coming elections is to do your fair proportion of the work. We must struggle on in the work, and I assure the people that our victory in the Fall is the victory of peace. [Applause.] The union of law and order, of thrift and industry, and prosperity will be restored. If we fall in the accomplishment of this work, the country will be launched on a sea of new troubles and issues, the effect of which will be to place us back to 'd', and compel us to go over again with all the questions that hav

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.

At the request of numberless citizens, the following suggestions for the guidance of persons desirous of prosecuting individuals guilty of cruelty to ani ous of prosecuting individuals guilty of cruelty to ani mals are made public:

There are three modes of proceeding: I. By giving the offender into the custody of an officer authorized to make arrests.—This is the best course to adopt when the offense is committed within the City of New York, and all other towns where magistrates sit daily, as the person can be conveyed immediately into Court. If a polloeman or constable is not within reach when the cruelty is witnessed, or cannot be obtained soon afterward, it will be better to proceed by summons. Give your name and address to the officer, as a witness.

II. By the issue of a summons.—First obtain the name and address to the officer, as a witness.

II. By the issue of a summons.—First obtain the name and address of the offender, and that painted on the vehicle (if any), and lay the complaint before a magistrate. Make a note of the time when and the street or piace where the offense occurred. If for driving a horse or other animal with galled neck or shoulders or other wounds, note the size and situation of such wounds, especially if raw, discharging, or in contact with the harness; if for flogging or beating, note the instrument, the number of blows, on what part of the body inflicted, and the effect (if any) on the skin of the animal; if for immenses, weakness or infirmity, or overloading, as manifested by the trembling, failing, musual perspiration, or exhaustion of the animal; or if for mutilation, such as docking tails of horses, cutting tails or ears of dogs, or any other torture, observe minutely and take down in writing the character in detail. If for transporting sheep, calves, game, fowls, or other poultry or animals, while bound by the legs or otherwise, in any part of this State, either on land or water, remember the language of the accused at the time.

III. By the apprehension of the accused under warrant.—This is desirable in all cases where there is reason to believe the offender will evade the summons, or is a resident of another State, or is ab accused at the time.

III. By the apprehension of the accused under warrant.—This is desirable in all cases where there is reason to believe the offender will evade the summons, or is a resident of another State, or is about to abscond.

Any respectable person calling at the office of the Society, No. 628 Broadway, New-York City, between the hours of 9 and 5 daily, or upon any of its agents, and fornishing the particulars of any act of cruelty, along with sufficient evidence, the Society will conduct the prosecution without expense or trouble to the witness whatever, except in so far as may be necessary for the conviction of the offender, and in certain cases pay a reward on conviction. Except under very aggravated circumstances, it is best, when drivers will comply, to cause part of an overlead of merchandise to be directly transferred to another vehicle instead of being deposited upon the sidewalk), and no arrest made. The law requires, and the Superintendent has promulgated to the force, that all policemen "shall aid the Society, its members and agents—any citizen being an agent—in the enforcement of all laws for the protection of dumb animals;" and should any such officer refuse—which it is hoped will not occurbis nance or number should be sent either to Headquarters or else to the office of this Society, No. 636 Broadway, HENRY BERGE, President.
